Boston 2012

IRE IRE Conference June 14-17

Welcome to Boston!

Prepare to be amazed.

And humbled. And inspired.

Definitely inspired.

That's how I feel every year as we put together the program for this annual conference.

There are so many strong, smart journalists doing so much important work that the difficult thing for us isn't filling this imposing schedule, but trying to figure out how we can fit as much as possible. So grab a pen and start marking your can't-miss panels on the schedule that begins on page 19.

Want to learn how to uncover corruption in government? Check.

Malfeasance in business? Check.

Misuse of power by law enforcement? Check.

Abuse of the powerless by everyone from university leaders to coaches to caregivers? Unfortunately, we have plenty of examples of that as well.

And while you're figuring out what session to check out next, here are a few of the overall conference highlights to be sure to include in your plans:

- Pitch your book or movie idea to an agent. (Page 5)
- Dig into the ramifications of the News Corp. phone hacking scandal with Guardian editor Alan Rusbridger, The New York Times' David Carr, ABC's Brian Ross and Leonard Downie Jr. of The Washington Post and Arizona State University on one of two Showcase Panels. At the other, explore what it means to investigate the powerful with Sarah Ganim of The Patriot News, James Steele of Vanity Fair, Florence Graves of the Schuster Institute for Investigative Journalism, Walt Bogdanich of The New York Times and moderator Charles Lewis of the Investigative Reporting Workshop. (Page 6)
- Celebrate much of the best investigative work of the year at the awards luncheon on Saturday, where you'll hear from keynote speaker Jill Abramson of The New York Times. (Page 6)
- Prepare for election coverage at a series of panels held throughout the conference, starting with a special Wednesday afternoon session.
- Kick things off at the legendary Blues Bash on Thursday night (tickets are still available) and support IRE's Resource Center. (Page 4)
- Vote for IRE Board members and catch up on the latest member news on Saturday evening. Then attend our closing reception. (Page 9)

Make sure you make the most of the conference. And if you end up doing a story that is sparked by something you heard here, shoot me an email at mark@ire.org. I'd love to hear about it.

Read the original stories highlighted in panel discussions and other examples of outstanding investigations shared by IRE members. If you have copies of stories you'd like to make available, please leave them with an IRE staff member at the sales desk.

Tipsheets and other handouts from speakers are available in each panel session. Any remaining copies will be available in the reprints/tipsheets area on the 4th Floor.

After the conference, tipsheets and reprints will be available through the Resource Center. IRE members can purchase the entire IRE 2012 collection on CD or download individual tipsheets from the IRE website. Order forms will be available at the sales desk.

2012 Conference Evaluation

New for the IRE conference – we will be sending out daily evaluations to gather your feedback on the sessions you attended that day. Please take a moment to complete these evaluations, as they are important as we plan next year's conference. We will also send a full evaluation after the conference. Thank you in advance for taking the time to complete the evaluation.

Reminders

- Please wear your name tag to all IRE sessions and events.
- Please set all cell phones and pagers to silent or vibrate while in sessions. The speakers and fellow attendees will appreciate it.

Wireless Internet

• Complimentary to all IRE attendees, instructions on how to access will be provided on site.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Blues Bash – Thursday 🍐 🚽

Dynamic blues sensation Gina Sicilia will headline the 14th annual IRE Blues Bash on Thursday, June 14 — the opening night of the 2012 conference in Boston.

Middle East Downstairs — one of the coolest clubs in Cambridge — will be home to this year's Blues Bash.

The party starts at 7 p.m.; IRE will have exclusive use of the venue until midnight.

Tickets — if still available — will be $25 at the conference and $30 at the door the night of the event.

Once again, the money goes to a great cause. The Blues Bash has raised more than $30,000 for the IRE Resource Center.

Awards Luncheon – Saturday

A highlight of the IRE conference, the IRE Awards Luncheon begins at noon Saturday in Salon F-K. We will present the 2011 IRE Awards and salute some of the best investigative work of the past year. (See a complete list of winners and finalists, pp. 12 – 17).

Admission to the luncheon is included with your conference registration. Guest tickets are available for $60 at the IRE sales desk.

Closing reception – Saturday

Co-sponsored by Boston University College of Communication and IRE

Join us for a closing reception from 7:30 - 8:30 p.m. on the 4th floor and enjoy one last evening of catching up with old and new friends, speakers and colleagues.

Hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar will be available. Conference name tags are required for entry.

SCHEDULE HIGHLIGHTS

Broadcast Show and Tell

Show-and-Tell sessions offer new ways to share your investigations with colleagues from around the country. Sessions will have veteran broadcasters as moderators. Look for sign-up sheets on the 4th floor near registration. Sessions will take place in Exeter-Fairfield on Friday and Saturday.

Broadcast One-on-One Mentoring - Saturday

Poynter's AI Tompkins will be working one-on-one with broadcasters. Sign up for a timeslot on the 4th floor near registration. Sign-up early as there are limited spaces. Don't forget to bring your DVD or clips with you.

Best Practices for Nonprofit Newsrooms:

A day of hands-on sharing and learning - Thursday Sponsored by John S. and James L. Knight Foundation, Investigative News Network and IRE

This daylong program will focus on three key areas that are vital to nonprofit investigative centers: collaboration, legal issues and best practices in operations, digital technology and more. It is being organized in partnership between IRE and the Investigative News Network.

Pitch Your Book - Friday

IRE has lined up leading New York and Boston-based literary agents who have agreed to see journalists for a limited number of 10-minute appointments. Sign-up for time slots will be near the registration desk. Meetings will take place in Arlington-Berkeley.

Brown Bag with Media Lawyers

Sponsored by Smallman Law PLLC and IRE 1 p.m. Friday, Salon A-B

Here's your chance for an informal Q&A about legal issues. Bring your "hypotheticals" and your own lunch. Beverages and desserts will be provided.

Networking Breakfast for IRE Mentoring Program Participants

Sponsored by the Scripps Howard Foundation 8 a.m. Friday, St. Botolph

Coffee and pastries will be served. This is an invitation-only event.

International Journalists Luncheon

Sponsored by Investigative Reporting Workshop at American University and IRE

1 p.m. Friday, St. Botolph

Journalists from outside the United States will meet and discuss strategies for training and working together. This is an invitationonly event. Following lunch there will be a round table discuss on collaboration and networking in Salon C-D at 2:15 p.m.

Tweet during the Conference

Please use #IRE (or #IRE12) in your tweets so everyone can follow the latest news and observations.

Free Reynolds Business Journalism Workshop -Wednesday

Sponsored by Donald W. Reynolds National Center for Business Journalism

Come to a free Reynolds Center workshop on Wednesday, June 13. Bring the name of a company you follow to this workshop and learn how to track its efforts at political influence from two experts: New York Times reporter Ron Nixon and Sunlight Foundation editorial director Bill Allison. They will help you:

- Find campaign contributions and lobbying expenditures by companies at the state and federal level;
- Tie company spending on candidates or lobbying to legislative or regulatory actions;
- Find corporate contributions to independent groups.

Registration begins at 12:30 p.m. This free workshop on "Tracking Companies' Influence on Politics" will be from 1-5 p.m. in Clarendon-Dartmouth.

Excel Mini Boot Camp - Thursday

If you want to really dig deep, you need to know your way around data and electronic records. This hands-on session introduces data analysis with spreadsheets. In one afternoon you'll learn to sort, select, summarize and graphically display data. With Excel's powerful formulas, filtering and pivot tables, you'll turn data into a tipsheet to help guide your reporting and mine data for stories. Unleash the power of spreadsheets to help you ask smarter questions, work more efficiently and produce more watchdog reporting. This workshop is limited to preregistered attendees. See items marked "Excel Mini Boot Camp" in the schedule.

Tableau Public - Thursday

Vendor Session by Tableau Public

Tableau for Beginners (hands-on training)

9 a.m. – 12:30 p.m.

Learn how to create beautiful, interactive data visualizations on short deadlines. No programming required.

You'll learn everything you need to build data visualizations and publish them to your website just like a video. We'll teach you how to:

- Connect to Excel files and other data
- Create maps and charts
- Format them beautifully
- Make them interactive

Tableau Public is a free tool for journalists. No previous experience with Tableau is necessary to take this class. Walk-ins are allowed until the class is full.

Tableau for Pros (hands-on training)

1:30-5:30 p.m.

Take your data visualization skills to the next level. In this class we'll push Tableau's capabilities further to create more complex visualizations. You'll learn how to:

- Clean and format dirty data
- Use multiple data sources in the same visualization
- Build more advanced visualizations
- Employ advanced interactive elements

Tableau Public is a free tool for journalists. Class participants should have some experience with Tableau or have taken the morning beginners course. Walk-ins are allowed until the class is full.

Tableau Public - Reception for Thursday attendees

Hosted by Tableau Public 6 p.m., Thursday, Salon F

Party with your Data

Join us for free drinks and T-shirts at the Party with Your Data Happy Hour! First come, first serve - while supplies last! Bring your conference badge. Limited to Thursday attendees.

KEYNOTE ADDRESS

ill Abramson has been executive editor of The New York Times since September 2011. Previously she was managing editor of the paper from August 2003 until August 2011. As managing editor, Abramson has helped supervise coverage of two wars, four national elections, hurricanes and oil spills. She also writes about politics, in the Week in Review and Book Review sections. She served as Washington bureau chief from December 2000 until July 2003. She joined the newspaper in September 1997 and became Washington editor in 1999.

Previously, Abramson worked at The Wall Street Journal from 1988 to 1997. While there, she served as deputy bureau chief in its Washington, D.C. bureau and investigative reporter, covering money and politics.

From 1986 to 1988 she was editor in chief of Legal Times, a weekly newspaper in Washington, D.C.; before joining Legal Times, Abramson was a senior staff reporter for The American Lawyer for nearly a decade. While an undergraduate at Harvard, she worked at Time magazine from 1973 to 1976.

Abramson is co-author of "Strange Justice: The Selling of Clarence Thomas," published in 1994, and "Where They Are Now: The Story of the Women of Harvard Law 1974," published in 1986. "Strange Justice," a non-fiction finalist for the National Book Award and National Book Critics Circle Award in 1994, details the circumstances surrounding the confirmation hearings of Justice Clarence Thomas. "Where They Are Now" is a study of the 71 women in the Harvard Law School class of 1974.

Abramson won the National Press Club award for national correspondence in 1992 for political coverage of money and politics.

JILL ABRAMSON Executive Editor, The New York Times

She teaches an undergraduate journalism seminar in the English Department of Yale University during the spring term and is embarking on her fifth year there. During the 2000-2001 fall term, she was a Ferris Professor at Princeton University teaching an undergraduate seminar on politics and journalism. Abramson is a member of the American Academy of Arts & Sciences. She serves on the Journalism Advisory Board of ProPublica, an independent, non-profit newsroom that produces investigative journalism in the public interest. She also serves on the board of visitors of Columbia University's School of Journalism.

MENTORSHIP PROGRAM

The 2012 IRE Conference offers a unique opportunity for in-depth, one-on-one coaching. Mentees get advice from experienced journalists on improving their skills as reporters, editors or producers. The mentoring that occurs during these sessions often continues in a more informal way for months, even years, after the conference concludes.

Special thanks to the Scripps Howard Foundation for its continuing support of the IRE Mentorship Program. IRE also thanks Jennifer LaFleur, ProPublica and Mark Greenblatt, ABC News, for coordinating the mentorship program this year.

The following journalists are volunteering their time as mentors at this year's conference:

Board of Directors Meeting

4 p.m. Thursday, Regis

The meeting is open to members. The board will also meet briefly on Saturday after the membership meeting to elect officers.

Membership Meeting

6 p.m. Saturday, Salon E

Plan to attend the annual membership meeting in order to cast a ballot in the Board of Directors elections. Seven seats on the 13-member board are up for election this year.

IRE members who filed their candidacy before the pre-conference deadline were allowed to submit a statement for posting on the IRE website. www. ire.org

Anyone who declares candidacy at the conference must deliver a one-page statement/biography to the executive director by noon, local time, on Friday, June 15. Those statements will be displayed on a bulletin board in the main conference area.

At the membership meeting, candidates must be nominated and seconded from the floor by two other IRE members. There will be no nominating speeches, but candidates will have two minutes to address their peers.

Once the doors are closed, no one is allowed to enter or exit until voting is completed.

Immediately following the board elections, there will be a separate election for two IRE Awards contest judges. Those candidates will be nominated and seconded from the floor.

More information about the IRE board's duties and the election rules are online at http://ire.org/about/board-directors/elections/.

Current IRE Board Members

President - Manny Garcia, El Nuevo Herald Vice-President – Andrew Donohue, Voice of San Diego Treasurer – David Cay Johnston, Reuters Secretary – Sarah Cohen, Duke University Robert Cribb, The Toronto Star Leonard Downie, Jr., The Washington Post/Arizona State University Josh Meyer, Medill National Security Journalism Initiative Aron Pilhofer, The New York Times Lea Thompson, Broadcast journalist/producer Mc Nelly Torres, Florida Center for Investigative Reporting Matt Waite, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Phil Williams, WTVF-Nashville Alison Young, USA Today

The ballot at the membership meeting will include all candidates who declared by the June 15 deadline.

OFFICIAL BUSINESS

Members unable to attend the conference were allowed to participate via absentee balloting. Absentee balloting is meant to supplement – not replace – IRE's traditional election process, which encourages membership meeting attendance as a sign of commitment to the group and to involve as many members as possible in important discussions.

Candidates who declared by April 27 were included on the absentee ballot. Members were allowed to request absentee ballots from April 27-May 22.

The deadline for returning absentee ballots was June 8. The absentee ballots have been kept sealed in special ballot envelopes and are not opened until the general election count on Saturday, June 16. Absentee ballots are not available, nor are late submissions accepted, at the conference.

Data and analysis for stories

The Database Library maintains a collection of government databases on a wide array of subjects, provides data analysis services for news organizations and assists journalists trying to solve data problems. Visit http://ire.org/nicar/ for details. The library is operated by IRE and the National Institute for Computer-Assisted Reporting, a joint program of IRE and the Missouri School of Journalism.

Our expert staff can provide custom database analysis or mapping services to help produce stories with impact that are backed by quality research.

IRE AWARD:

• "Assault on Learning" The Philadelphia Inquirer, Philadelphia.

John Sullivan, Susan Snyder, Kristen A. Graham, Dylan Purcell, Jeff Gammage, Mike Leary, Rose Ciotta

Judges' Comments: "Assault on Learning" is local reporting at its highest level. We all know anecdotally that urban schools are tough places to survive, let alone learn, but reporters at The Philadelphia Inquirer went so much further in quantifying the violence and personalizing it in an irrefutable way. The Inquirer demonstrated the school system under-reported violent incidents and routinely failed to protect teachers and students. An intervention program was unmasked as nothing more than paper-shuffling. Following the project, the district has established a new protocol for reporting serious incidents and crime. For putting five reporters on this project for more than year, for overcoming the obstacles of closed environments and sealed records, and for putting a face on a violent school system and its victims, IRE honors The Inquirer for exemplary investigative work.

FINALISTS:

• "Million-Dollar Wasteland" The Washington Post, Debbie Cenziper, Jennifer Jenkins, John Mummolo, Meg Smith, Julie Tate

- "Billions to Spend" Los Angeles Times, Michael Finnegan, Gale Holland, Paul Pringle, Doug Smith, Ben Welsh
- "Honor Tarnished" McClatchy Newspapers, Jonathan S. Landay

• "Methadone and the Politics of Pain" The Seattle Times, Seattle.

Michael J. Berens, Ken Armstrong

Judges' Comments: Scrutiny of hundreds of thousands of documents and customized databases left no doubt the decision by the state of Washington to use methadone as a narcotic pain killer was discriminatory and dangerous. Despite fierce opposition from officials, the paper was able to prove in a 10-month investigation that more than 2,000 people overdosed on the cheap but unpredictable drug the state was pushing to save money. Through exhaustive cross-referencing and shoe leather reporting, the paper showed that while 8 percent of poor adults were on Medicaid, they represented 48 percent of the methadone deaths. In swift reaction to the story, the state issued an emergency health advisory to more than 1,000 pharmacists and 17,000 licensed health care professionals, warning of methadone's risk. For saving lives, IRE honors The Seattle Times and all the people who worked on that story.

• "Unfit for Duty" Sarasota Herald-Tribune, Sarasota, Fla.

Matthew Doig, Anthony Cormier.

Judges' Comments: In "Unfit for Duty," the Sarasota Herald-Tribune exposed questionable backgrounds of hundreds of Florida police officers. Backed by database analysis and on-the-ground reporting, investigations editor Matthew Doig and crime beat reporter Anthony Cormier joined forces to find nearly one in 20 active law enforcement officers had egregious cases of misconduct but still managed to keep their badges. The newspaper's story prompted results even before the story ran. Florida's governor ordered an inquiry into violations of law uncovered by the reporters, and two police officers became targets of an investigation. For exposing lack of police oversight that allowed a cadre of rogue cops to work in cities and towns throughout the state, IRE honors the Sarasota Herald-Tribune.

"20/20 Peace Corps: A Trust Betrayed" ABC News.

Brian Ross, Anna Schecter, Angela M. Hill, Rhonda Schwartz, Mark Schone

Judges' Comments: ABC News had a hard-hitting report on the 50th anniversary of the Peace Corps. After 10 months of work, it revealed a shocking story of hundreds of Peace Corps women being raped around the world. This report by Brian Ross and the ABC investigative team was in large part responsible for a new law, named after the victim in the ABC report, which is meant to protect Peace Corps volunteers and whistleblowers. Using internal Peace Corps reports ABC was able to show a systematic failure within the agency and its practice of "hushing things up" and "blaming the victim." ABC not only found many victims but also persuaded them to go public. IRE commends Ross and Producer Anna Schecter for their on-the-ground investigation in Benin, West Africa, and honors them for their 20-plus followup stories and a very tough interview with the Peace Corps.

• "Constable Corruption" KTRK - Houston.

Wayne Dolcefino, Kevin Hirten, Colin McIntyre

Judges' Comments: In this textbook IRE investigation done in a nontraditional style, KTRK-TV went after Houston-area law enforcement officials. Plowing through mountains of paperwork, data and sources, reporter Wayne Dolcefino and his team exposed a culture of corruption among the county's entrenched constables that included appropriating charity and campaign funds for their own use and allowing employees to commit time sheet fraud. Dolcefino engages the viewer with his irreverent style and high production values, but beneath the entertainment is a rock-solid, water-tight, well-documented investigation. The station made extensive use of FOIA and fought back hard when denied. Its online presentation engaged the reader to follow the investigators as they pursued their targets. Several outside agencies are now investigating several constables offices. For the dogged and difficult pursuit of corruption in its own hometown, KTRK'S "Constable Corruption" is awarded IRE's highest honor, an IRE Medal.

• "Hiding Behind the Badge" WVUE - New Orleans.

Lee Zurik, Donny Pearce, Mikel Schaefer, Greg Phillips, Marcy Planer

Judges' Comments: A powerful sheriff and a businessman pleaded guilty to federal corruption charges after Lee Zurik and the WVUE-TV team exposed and detailed their intricate scheme to defraud taxpayers. Through public records requests and scrutiny of thousands of pages of documents, the team built spreadsheets that proved how a local sheriff spent hundreds of thousands of dollars from his donors on a lavish lifestyle, falsified campaign documents and profited from the BP oil spill. Congratulations to WVUE-TV for its eightmonth rolling investigation and its stick-to-it attitude, which resulted in even bigger stories as the station continued to dig.

Judges' Comments: Most Americans believe the nation's morgues are filled with dedicated professionals who are equipped with high-tech, state-of-the-art tools and spend whatever time it takes to solve suspicious deaths and bring criminals to justice. ProPublica, NPR and Frontline showed us death investigations are a patchwork of different systems that bear little resemblance to the work seen on television shows such as "CSI." Through this revealing multimedia package, we learned death investigations are often flawed and innocent people go to jail or the guilty are allowed to go free. For its hard-driving investigation into this little-understood part of the criminal justice system, IRE honors "Death Investigation in America."

• "On Shaky Ground" California Watch and KQED - San Francisco. Corey G. Johnson, Erica Perez, Kendall Taggart, Agustin Armendariz, Michael Montgomery, Anna Werner, Chase Davis, Michael Corey, Carrie Ching, Ashley Alvarado, Krissy Clark.

Judges' Comments: "On Shaky Ground" was an extraordinary effort examining seismic safeguards in place to protect California's schoolchildren from earthquakes. Reporters dug through more than 30,000 pages of documents, created online maps and databases and visited schools throughout the state to get the story. It took 19 months, but the reporters found California officials abrogated their oversight duties and allowed more than 42,000 children to attend schools with serious safety issues. The project had astonishing breadth, depth and creativity. The stories were published in more than 150 news outlets and translated into four languages, and video segments appeared in every major California media market. California Watch created an iPhone app to show local residents their proximity to fault zones and even a coloring book explaining it all to schoolchildren. The hard work paid off:

State lawmakers ordered audits and investigations, and new state standards were created to allow schools to more easily tap into a fund to repair seismic hazards. For its commitment to public service, use of documents and computer analysis, and its focus on reader engagement and interactivity, "On Shaky Ground" is awarded IRE's highest honor, an IRE Medal.

 "Render Unto Rome: The Secret Life of Money in the Catholic Church" by Jason Berry

Judges' Comments: Author Jason Berry delves deeply into a topic few have examined - the secretive finances of the Roman Catholic Church. Using voluminous background research that takes the reader back centuries, Berry uncovers abuses of the trust of church members by influential bishops who diverted funds intended for philanthropic purposes into accounts used for plugging Vatican operating deficits or defending priests accused of pedophilia. Berry details how the modern church is systematically closing churches in poorer parishes while at the same time opening churches in affluent suburbs where the weekly "take" is greater. The author makes extensive use of public documents, leaked parish records, trial transcripts, interviews and a wide range of published reporting to paint a complete picture of a heretofore secret network of church financial dealings. For shining a bright light on the shenanigans and inner workings of the Catholic Church, IRE honors Jason Berry and "Render Unto Rome".

"The Fed's Trillion-Dollar Secret" Bloomberg News. Bradley Keoun, Phil Kuntz, Bob Ivry, Craig Torres, Scott Lanman, David Yanofsky, Donal Griffin, Greg Stohr and Christopher Condon

Judges' Comments: This is accountability reporting at its best. In the wake of the near collapse of the nation's financial system, Bloomberg News sought important records from the Federal Reserve about loans made to some of the nation's biggest banks. The Federal Reserve refused, and Bloomberg sued under the Freedom of Information Act. The case went all the way to the Supreme Court, which refused to overturn the lower court's decision. IRE commends Bloomberg News for its efforts to provide a rare, behind-the-scenes look at one of the most powerful and secretive industries in American society.

Judges' Comments: CNN's team faced great personal risk in crossing the dangerous badlands of Egypt's Sinai Peninsula to expose a network of human trafficking and organ sales in "Death in the Desert." The team managed to persuade the hostile, clannish Bedouin tribesmen of the region to talk about their organized kidnapping for ransom and trafficking in African immigrants trying to cross from Egypt into Israel. The team also procured photographic evidence, reviewed by coroners, that suggested some immigrants had their organs harvested before being buried in the desert. The final scene of nameless immigrants buried in unmarked graves almost within sight of their final destination in Israel provided an emotional finish to a dramatic, difficult and important story.

For its superb and fair coverage and its rigorous editorial advocacy, The Salt Lake Tribune receives an IRE Special Recognition Award for "Service to the First Amendment." The paper waged and won a battle over the Utah legislature's attempt to eviscerate Utah's open records law and citizens' rights to know. Lawmakers introduced and passed a bill late in the legislative session without much notice. But the paper fought back in two months of coverage on the content and impact of the bill. It offered its content to other newspapers around the state, and in a rare and unusual move ran strong editorials on the front page. Despite the governor's initial signing of the bill, the paper's efforts and public outcry forced him to reverse his position and call the legislature back into session. For extraordinary effort by newspaper managers and staff, IRE offers it congratulations and awards special recognition.

Judges' Comments: The Palm Beach Post raced the clock and the competition to unearth compelling

The Palm Beach Post

details in the deaths of two children whose bodies were fished out of a South Florida canal. Reporters LaForgia, Roldan and Playford were able to flesh out details about the suspect and victims within days of the crime. Playford uncovered key court documents 30 minutes before the courthouse closed and, using his iPhone, snapped pictures of hundreds of pages of documents as clerks were shoving him out the door. The records showed how officials should and could have done more to protect the children from the violent felon who was engaged to their mother. IRE chose this entry as an exemplary case of how investigative reporters can dig deeply on deadline, and in this case their rapid-fire enterprise work revealed flaws in Florida's child welfare system.

Judges' Comments:

Three student reporters took on powerful Texas Tech University alumni over a sweetheart deal to build and then lease back to the university a parking garage that wasn't needed. Their investigation probably saved the university $1 million. The student reporters got the state's attorney general involved in forcing documents to be released under Texas Public the Information Act. They also used emails, tax records and other documents to show the cozy relationship between members of the same fraternity who built an unnecessary private parking garage and then leased it back under a contract that put the burden of renting the spaces on Texas Tech and its alumni association.
